Dear Hiring Manager,

This letter is to express my interest in the Junior Developer position for FieldLevel. My name is Justin Garcia and I am a recent graduate from LEARN academy, a coding bootcamp in San Diego. I am highly interested in this opportunity because I believe I would make a great fit to your company. My attention to detail, communication skills and focus combined with my proficient knowledge of JavaScript, React, Ruby on Rails and MySQL will be beneficial to your company.

In the past year I have developed applications from design to coding under the direction of a bootcamp at LEARN academy. Currently, I am an intern with Coding Zeal. During my experience with Zeal, I participated in the Iteration Planning Meetings with our client, got exposure to Paired-Programming while working remotely, and developed an application that will be used internally by this company. I also gained knowledge in how a daily GitHub workflow works as well as Test-Driven Development. Previously, in my most recent role as a Service Manager, I was responsible for creating a structured system that I implemented to keep a fast paced yet organized workflow that allowed smooth day to day operations for our mechanics as well as managing all repairs from start to finish to ensure quality repairs in a very timely manner. In doing so, this prevented unnecessary problems that would arise previous to my placement into this role. Throughout my duration with this company I generated a 25% increase in part and equipment sales from the start and end of my role in this position by establishing many strong customer relationships in the greater Sacramento area.

Leading up to the position in my management role, my journey began as a mechanic. My interest and willingness to learn more pushed me to excel as a professional and as a hobbyist. During this process I was able to develop problem-solving skills and gain an understanding of how to incorporate a step by step architecture to accomplish a build or repair. With these qualities I acquired from my previous profession and interests, I became very intrigued with the area of web development because it gave me the same sense of excitement and joy. I was able to incorporate all of these skills obtained throughout my adventure as a mechanic and apply them as a Web Developer. For the duration of my life I've have always been very artistic, whether it was drawing with pastels or using water colors, I have always seemed to have a vision of a finished product that was unique and that would stand out from the rest. Since becoming a Web Developer I've discovered that I was able to administer these same principles and allow myself to express my artistic side as a developer.

With these qualities, my leadership experience, hard work, enthusiasm, and flexibility I believe I will be a valuable part of the team. My resume is enclosed to provide you with details of my skills and accomplishments, but I am certain that a personal interview would more fully reveal my desire and ability to contribute to your company. Thank you for your time and consideration, and do not hesitate to contact me with any questions.

Sincerely,

Justin Garcia
